

I RUN JHB PROFILE

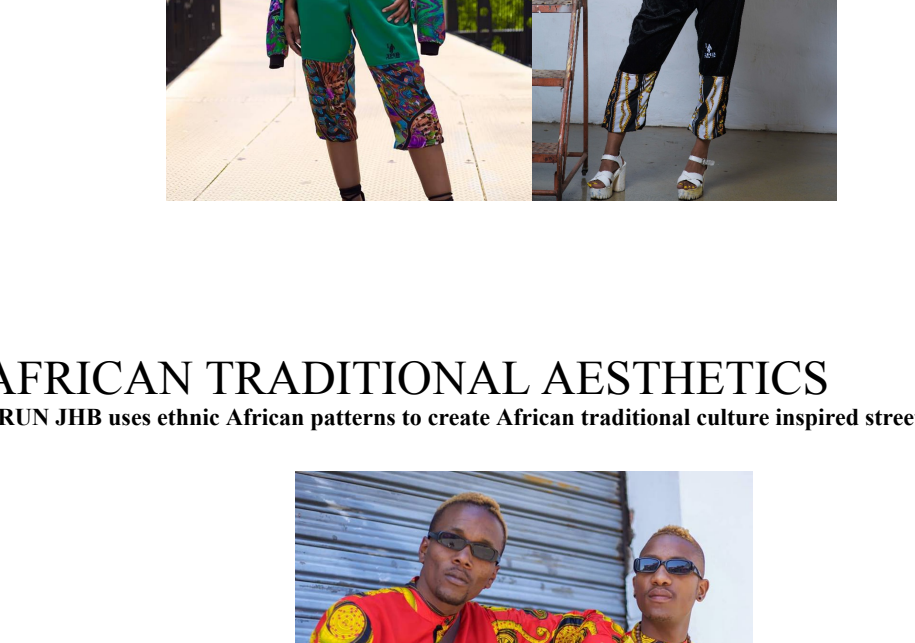

ABOUT THE BRAND.

I RUN JHB is a premium South African street culture lifestyle brand. I RUN JHB fuses South African traditional culture, Kasi (township) trends and African traditional culture aesthetics to create Urban street wear called UMSWENKO. Umswenko is an authentic South African street sub-culture and an expression of dressing well.

Target Market: I RUN JHB target market is the youth aged between 18-35 years and this is made of African youth, tourists and the international audience.

South African traditional culture

I RUN JHB creates South African traditional culture wear for different cultures and ethnic groups in South Africa by using indigenous traditional culture fabrics that are unique to each traditional culture. These South African traditional cultures includes: IsiZULU, IsiXhosa, IsiSwati, IsiNdebele, Sepedi, Sesotho, Setswana, Xitsonga and TshiVenda

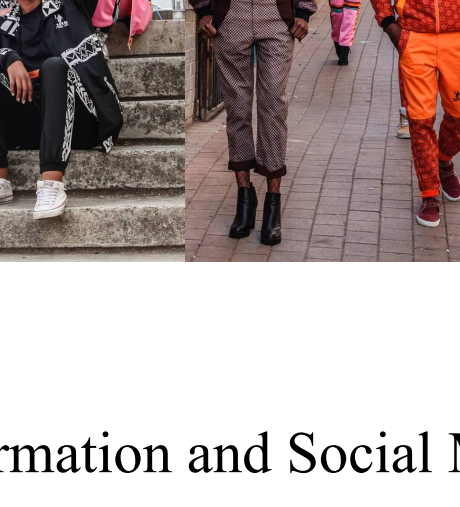

KASI (TOWNSHIP) STREET CULTURE

I RUN JHB creates kasi (township) street culture wear through carefully selecting and creating fabrics that are synonymous with township trends and township street sub cultures affiliates such as amapantlana, amatariana and izikhothane can relate to and this trends/affiliates are found in different South African townships.

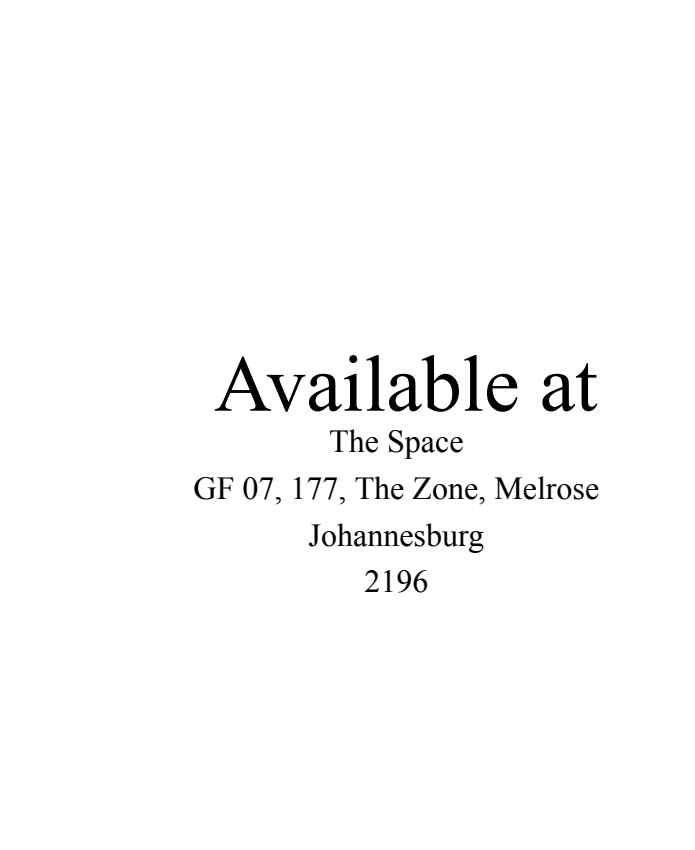

AFRICAN TRADITIONAL AESTHETICS

I RUN JHB uses ethnic African patterns to create African traditional culture inspired street wear.

Why the name I RUN JHB?

The name of the brand is inspired by the aim to celebrate the iconic world class city that is Johannesburg which is synonymous with the bright city lights where ambitious beings come and come together to hustle and find ways to attain their dreams. Johannesburg is known as the go to city if you are a dreamer and hustler who aims to make their dreams a reality. I RUN JHB garments are the epitome of Johannesburg as a city that accommodates decedents from different parts of the world.
